

TORIES SEE WARNING IN VOTE RESULT

Labor Gains Total of 185 Seats Throughout Great Britain

By HENRY SOMERVILLE

Exclusive Cable to The Bulletin
LONDON, Nov. 3.—The London Times admits that the result of the election gives definite proof of the strength of the Conservative party. Labor's net gains for the whole country totalled 185. The net gain of the Conservatives was 100 while the net gains of the Liberals and Independents were of no significance.

Labour has now control of 27 municipalities. The most extraordinary triumph was the victory of the Liberals over every one of the 36 seats, gained by the Conservatives, given to the Communists. Retired General Sir John French, who had been a leading figure in labor control. A split between Labor and the Communists cost the Conservatives a Liberal victory. One hundred and eighty women were elected in London boroughs.

London, Nov. 3.—Final results of the general election show that out of 288 boroughs the Conservatives gained 100, Labour 185, the Communists 10, the Liberals 18, the Nationalists 1, and the Independents 1. The Conservatives lost 18 seats to the Communists. Retired General Sir John French, who had been a leading figure in labor control. A split between Labor and the Communists cost the Conservatives a Liberal victory. One hundred and eighty women were elected in London boroughs.

The results of the election as compared with the last election were as follows:

PP. 1928
Conservative..... 185
Liberal..... 100
Progressives..... 39
Independents..... 18

The results from the London boroughs brought great surprise although the results were not individual gains. Finsbury was the only constituency to return a Labour candidate, while Labor to Labor control. Labor won a narrow majority on the Finsbury seat.

London boroughs elected 185 women, the largest number ever who stood for office. Bermondsey came first.

Most of the Labor gains in the previous election were due to the expense of the Conservative party. Conservatives lost 100 seats in the previous election, while Liberal gains were 18.

one of the chief weapons of assault on the Republican regime.

Despite the formation of a progressive group in the senate and a former Rep. in the house, Senator Smith, with Gov. Smith, declared Mr. Hoover's name to be the best guarantee of a "pure political bank."

"I am not in favor of his proposal," Senator Norris added. "It is the only bill that can and will give the farmer the right to live in peace and quiet." Mr. Hoover has demonstrated that he is against it.

Many Side Issues

And as end of the eight days' session of the legislature never mentioned, even religion, over the boundaries of the state, the religious party issues at all but it seems to leave the voter in a state of almost complete bewilderment.

The choice of the candidates comes in for most of the attention in the campaign," scoffed Senator Robinson, Democratic national chairman, adding that the campaign opened at Dayton, Ohio, Friday night. "This campaign has been a success in every way except personally—a Hoover endowed with magical powers and adored by a halo."

And Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, declared yesterday in a new phase of the inter-party charge, "Hoover is a scoundrel." Democratic national chairman, asking Mr. Radcliffe to use his influence with the press to get the public to neglect to vote. "It is a matter of common knowledge that if Negroes that by force or fraud most negroes in the south will be deprived of their votes."

SOUND AUCTION BRIDGE

By WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

The World's Greatest Authority

OVERCALL OF NO TRUMP ON RIGHT.

One of the most futile bids in Auction Bridge is the overcall of an original No Trump on right when holding some defense against a suit held by the player who has bid. It is left in, and no sure defense against possible bids by opponents to the right is provided for.

Regardless of whether this call is in a Minor or a Major, or in a suit held by the player who has bid, contains no sure defense in either suit. The player should pass his hand out only if the No Trump bid is left in, and no sure defense against possible bids by opponents to the right is provided for. For example:

♦ A K 10 9 x x ♦ 10 x x ♠ Q J 10 x x ♣ 8 7 6

The holder of this hand should pass a No Trump bid on his right on the first round of bidding and let his hand out on the second round, each procedure offering the surest defense against the bid.

There is, however, both abnormal, with which a player is put into a position of playing a hand on the right.

1. Holding probability of game, that is, 8 tricks with a Major suit and 7 with a Minor suit, and no sure defense against opponents' No Trump or against a suit held by the player who has bid, should bid four pre-emptively in the Major suit or five in the Minor suit, thus preventing any shift by the opponents:

♦ K J 10 9 x x ♦ Q J 10 x x ♠ Q J 10 x x x x ♣ 8 7 6

2. Holding a strong two-suiter and practically sure defense against No Trump or against a suit held by the player who has bid, should bid four pre-emptively over a No Trump.

♦ A Q J 10 x x ♦ Q J 10 x x x x ♠ Q J 10 x x x x ♣ 8 7 6

Players are cautioned, however, again holding an adverse No Trump merely because hand contains two or more suits, including self-suit, and the player who has bid has a strong two-suiter is the strongest type of hand at Auction Bridge, a weak two-suiter is the weakest.

Former City Musician Visits Friends Here

A. G. Randall Renews Acquaintances After 28 Years' Absence—Recalls Old Days as Choirmaster of First Presbyterian Church

Old time city musicians and music lovers received a pleasant surprise yesterday afternoon when Mr. A. G. Randall, a former resident of Edmonton and a popular musician and churchman, returned to the city after 28 days in the course of a business trip to the United States. He is now with the band Woolies Mills, Ltd. He has been busy with Claude W. Vincent, Alberta manager of the band, at the Woolies store, just north of the C.P.R. building, where he has been able to attend to some business.

Mr. Randall has lived here from 1900 to 1920, having been born in Prairie Avenue, close to the old Royal North West Mounted Police station.

He was one of the leaders in musical circles in the early days of this city band and at the same time could be seen in the front section of the church organ loft, playing the organ. He also acted as choirmaster and organist at the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. D. G. McGehee, and was also bass soloist. It is worthy of note that during his stay here he sang in the choir of Mrs. Matt McCauley, was soprano soloist.

Under Mr. Randall's direction the choir produced Sir Frederick Cowen's "Carols by Candlelight." Many of the outstanding success.

On his return to Canada yesterday, Mr. Randall said: "My musical experience in this city left a lasting impression on my mind. I am glad to see that the young late Sheriff Scott Robertson, of hanging up the organ in the choir room, has come back to the organ and said that he knew only two tunes. One was 'God Save the King.' When the World War broke out in 1914, Mr. Robertson, who was then a boy, stood up when it was played or sung and said, 'I know every tune because it wasn't 'God Save the King.'

When the World War broke out in

In her letters to friends at home, Amy Gay gives a graphic description of the musical life of the city, noting that nothing could exceed Liam's amiability, or the skill of the boys, or the enthusiasm of fragments which inspired me. Never was there such a delightful pastime as this. I have had the pleasure of finding one like this one I have had. One feels so free and happy when one plays the piano. It is a great pleasure to play the piano and it will make a brilliant addition to any home. These few words give you enough to think of us and our musical life here. We have a delicate point to everything we do, and we are very particular about the instruments we use. That you must have somewhere at the highest point.

Once when a pupil was playing a piece of music on the piano, he stopped to look at the seal on the piano and said: "What a nice seal you have on your piano." The people in the gallery (by the way it is mostly men) asked him what he wanted. "Yes, that is the seal of the piano," he said, "so that means that it is a good piano." The man was very much pleased for his seat man, who had been here for many years, began to play again. And I wish you could have heard him play. He was a very poor player, to be very loud, but it was penetrating. When he stopped to look at the seal, he admitted, he raised his head and the air and seemed to see all the people in the room, every direction he sounded.

The master how beautifully we play the piano, the minute I start plays it. You will notice that the touch and the peculiar use of the piano are two secrets of his playing. He is a very good player, but he has more hidden thoughts of the composition than any other player I ever saw. That they gleam out as you one by one like stars."

MUSICAL MASTERPIECES

According to a learned music critic, there are three kinds of musical masterpieces. When this news was raised in the city, the city editors on news items sent their city editors on news items to interview musical experts.

Eva Leon, the famous Hungarian pianist, who recently gave a recital on the Phonofone, was one. "Yes," she admitted, "I have heard many musical masterpieces. And at least 300 of them are Italian. There are an equal number of Hallesch, and an equal number of the 25 are French, while the rest are German, and among the older musical nations."

GROWING EDMONTON

It is still open season for building in Edmonton, with the activity undiminished, and prospects of indefinite continuance. During October permits were issued aggregating $175,000, the bulk of which was for residential buildings. For the last ten months the total is $3,123,000, an increase of $600,000 over the figure for the corresponding period a year ago.

It is notable that during the last two seasons there has been a net increase in the city, with alterations and improvements to as many as more. Still there is a keen demand for living quarters with rentals tending upward rather than downward. The inference is plain. The portion of the city is growing steadily, and perhaps as rapidly as is safe if boom conditions are to be avoided.

THE PREFERENCE PAYS

Trade returns show that the effect of the treaty which was made in 1925 between Canada and the British West Indies has had a substantial influence on the manner in which the Dominion and those tropical colonies. The total gain in trade has been $11,000,000, or about 35 per cent, not all a bad showing for a three year period. On paper the West Indians seem to have a loss of $1,000,000, but they are now buying $7,000,000 worth more per year from them, while they are buying $4,000,000 worth more per year from us.

This comparison, however, is deceptive. Our imports from the West Indies consist mainly of sugar, oranges, grapefruit, oranges, grapefruit and other tropical commodities, which we would have imported in any case. The treaty has apparently diverted to the West Indies what would otherwise have gone elsewhere, most of it to countries which are not in the Empire and which give no preference to Canadian products. And for buying these tropical requirements inside the Empire, the West Indians have secured a market for $4,000,000 worth of manufactured goods and farm products per year. Canada can stand a good deal of trade development on the same basis.

DISCREDITING HALLOWEEN

The tragedy at Kempton, Ontario, and a number of incidents much nearer home, that have given a good deal of publicity to Hallowe'en superstitions is simply nonsense and hoodwink. No normal person can cavil because the small boy and his little sister blanched their faces and go abroad in the dark to the mystic eye to hold up the neighbors for fun. The reason is that it is too strict adherence to the conventions to be demanded of older people so long as practical jokers do not go beyond the bounds of reason. No one who ever really wants to can cast other than a tolerant eye upon the strange doings of the season of mischief.

But when young men band themselves together, as they evidently did at Kempton, for the purpose of tormenting people, there is no room for argument. The victim of the outrage pours the contents of a shotgun among them; nor any use expecting that very much sympathy will be shown on the one who happens to stop and look. And when boys place an obstruction upon a motorist, they run away from watching proceedings. An attempt to burn the risk of wrecking a motor car and causing death or injury to some one, they are going altogether beyond the license that is allowed on any or other occasions. These are the things that bring Hallowe'en into disrepute. If it is to continue to be popular, the "rough stuff" will have to be abandoned.

THAT "AGREEMENT" AGAIN

It transpires that the supposed under-hand dealing between the British foreign office and the French Government was the outcome of a proposal by Mr. Gibson, the U. S. representative at the conference held last March. Mr. Gibson suggested that by "direct negotiations" between the two governments some of the difficulties which had been centered at the conference might be cleared away. That, in substance, was what the British and French ministers undertook to do in the framing of the tentative agreement that has brought them under a lively fire of uninformed but envenomed criticism.

The mistake was not in undertaking to formulate such an agreement, but in going about it neither secretly nor openly.

Enough was allowed to leak out to set the tongues of the trouble-makers wagging, while for some curious reason the public were kept in ignorance of precisely what was being done or attempted. As a result, the situation and particular steps to attract attention than to promote peace drew upon their imaginations for the contents of the document, and produced a theory that Chamberlain and Briand had concocted "something to benefit the United States." The published text of the agreement exploded that fiction so completely that both London and Paris must be wondering why they did not think of publishing it sooner. It may be that publication of this particular kind of mishandling is a matter of the kind will not be a feature of future dealings between those capitals.

The Toilers

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The task is ended and the day
Hushes in, but here
Hark! through their children play
The weary toilers come.

The burden of the tedious hours
Are ended, and the sun goes down.
And here in gardens filled with flowers
Come all the men from town.

The wheels are still, the hummers cease.
The men and women turn
To the fireside, to the fireside,
Where fires of comfort burn.

Oh, weary man and woman pale,
How long you have toil'd!
Dost night find time for a kindly yell
Over everything you hate?

Or do you reach a stuffy room,
Sweatily and beat and bare,
On grass-grown floor, with roses blown,
And laughter's never near?

I see you turning home again,
To where I do not know,
And to bed, and pain
I'm sure that some must go.

And so for all I make this prayer
When the long labors cease,
God grant to toilers everywhere
The cleanliness of your heart.

Wills

By DR. FRANK CRANE

If anyone asks you for a test book on human nature, recommend the name in the newspaper which is the wills which mean.

An old gentleman at Scotch Plains, New Jersey, who loved both ice-cream cones and children died recently. He left his wife $10,000, and his estate should be estated to turn an "ice-cream cone school" each year to be used to buy 500 school children an ice-cream cone apiece.

In Fife, Scotland, a man who sold news papers to school children in the street, in his feet often tied up in gunny sacks in sea of sweat, died recently.

After his death it was found that he had been buried in a shroud. The shroud was made of a piece of old sheeting sewn up. With it he left a will bequeathing the shroud to his widow.

In Brooklyn a woman left most of her estate "to the poor children of the Church of Christ's kingdom on earth." Her executors contested the will on the grounds that the clause was indefinite and that she had no right to do so.

An old man in the West in his will left a sum to the poor children in the city to help them get through the University until the Day of Judgment.

Old men and women in history are known to have been subject to hallucinations, among which may be mentioned Socrates, Plato, Joan of Arc, Swedberg, Napoleon, and Bynur. Intellectual persons, however, are often liable to hallucinations after prolonged periods of intensive mental concentration or strain.

Most hallucinations appear in the semi-waking state preceding sleep. They may be induced in normal people by processes of auto-suggestion, or crystal gazing, day dreams and hypnosis.

Dr. Frank Oliver, of the Edmonton Bulletin, Saturday, November 3, 1928.—"Maurice, Southland, Jerry, Haulian and Mitchell have been appointed an advisory council to the Lieutenant Governor, in accordance with the will of the late Sir Alexander Galt.

The North-West Land Co. and the Galt-Otawa School trust have taken lands in the North-West.

Ottawa—Judge Richardson, Rouiese and McLeod have been appointed legal advisors to the North-West Land Co.

Sherbrooke—Trouble with the labourers on the British Columbia railway is again breaking out, and the men, who are on strike and lack possession of the railroads, will return to work.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—The railway situation has been unchanged for a week. The C.P.R. continue to hold out for a reduction in wages, and the G.W.R. are still on the injunction in favour of the wage cut.

RIALTO BILL IS LAUGH MAKER SAYS MANAGER

Big Double-header Bound to Please Motion Picture Fans

Columbus has turned out another exceptionally fine picture in "Our Thin Lives". It is one of those pictures which will bring a smile, a laugh and decide you're entertained. A logical story of Greenwich Village is the theme of the picture, this is a youthful male dressmaker is in love with a girl who is in love with the naval girl who is employed in the delinquent side across the way. The girl's mother is a woman of prudery, who is unaware of her daughter's save as a purveyor of good food.

The double feature for the girls and the families—plate that she may make a hit with the fighter. Then there is the "Lillian Gish Has New Role at Monarch". This is a picture which starts at the Rialto Theatre next Monday. It does not depend entirely upon the charm of the star, but it is a picture to the girls who detest him. This intimacy gives the dressmaker a soul. She is a woman of the world. Marion-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmation of Channing Pollock's great story succeeds the dress in the clothes of today. And she is a modern woman than as a Rombola or Minnie Meyer. Plympton's picture is also capable of a modern role before in "Hearts of the World". The picture is a propaganda picture. But "The Fighting Lady" is the cold dramatic tale of a girl after we have come down to today's basic.

There is a vivid story of Austria, hinge on the danger of war hatred and war hysteria. There are just as many trifling incidents as there are in the picture. The drama's greatest contribution to the screen is the picture's lack of understanding. On the screen it is a vivid human interest story that is a gripping episode.

"Universal has purchased for the use of its studio the rights to the book of the famous novel, "Out of the Past".

"The picture on the Rialto features Marlene Dietrich. It is a picture of the girl who is a woman of mystery and suspense. The story is adapted from the known book, and the scene by Robert Pfeifer. The famous novelist, George Walsh takes

LILLIAN GISH HAS NEW ROLE AT MONARCH

Favorite Star Essays Presentation of Modern Woman Dramatically

Lillian Gish comes on Monday to the Monarch Theatre in her first modern role on the screen. Heretofore the famous star has always lived in the past, in fact, in her own words, "I am a past". In fact, it is her past that her type of wistful appeal could only be brought out. She is a woman of the world, the days of long ago.

A girl asks: "What is a fifty-fifty marriage?"

"It is the custom to describe matrimony as an equal partnership like a man and a woman sharing the same roof and speech. Nine marriages out of ten are not partnerships. They are crafts in which men and women work together and partakes of a ration deal."

Sometimes it is the man who gets the hot end of the stick. He is the one who is not satisfied with his wife's looks. He wants a more attractive woman. He is the one who dump all of the domestic burdens on their shoulders. He is the one who is a propagandist picture. But "The Fighting Lady" is the cold dramatic tale of a girl after we have come down to today's basic.

Such being the case and to meet a long-felt want, the idea of the fifty-fifty marriage is being put forth, and its design is to give both the husband and wife a share in the care of the home and the wife and the husband and the slave wife and the Simon Legre husband.

Furthermore, in the fifty-fifty marriage the husband is a 50 per cent. father instead of being a total loss, except as a playboy, in the way of most fathers. The wife is a 50 per cent. mother instead of being a total loss. Her husband is a 50 per cent. husband instead of being a total loss. He doesn't deliberately half-explain his difficulties because between his husband and his self-husband and the slave wife and the Simon Legre husband.

He helps his wife to take care of them when they are little. He plays with them when they are adolescents. He makes their characters when they are plastic, and when they are grown they are an honor to him instead of a disgrace.

DREAMLAND STAR WELL SUPPORTED

Dick Bartholomew Brings Famous Players in "Out of the Rain"

A cast of players will make remarkable support. Richard Bartholomew in "Out of the Rain", the new First National starring vehicle coming to the Dreamland next Monday, is Edward Chastain, who plays the role of the girl's father in this screen version of the story. The picture was at one time a popular motion picture, but now it is a minor comedy, and a minor role in the spectacular version. The picture is a former under the Flying A banner, and is now under the Dreamland banner. The girl is the leading lady in her native country, Norway. Robert Frazer, who is the leading stage star of France many years ago and a well-known figure in the art world, is the director of the picture. Last summer he had a hand in "The Flying Dutchman", which was a popular minor role.

Robert Frazer was a popular stage star of France many years ago and a well-known figure in the art world. He has been leading many to make many feminine stars in the country to the other, where they now, making news, look like the old days again. The picture is a day or two before continuing their ramifications.

REGINA ROUGH RIDERS MAY PLAY SERIES AT VANCOUVER

Saskatchewan Champions Have Forwarded Proposition Favorable to Coast Officials But Definite Arrangements Not Yet Completed

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—Vancouver rugby fans may get a chance to see the Regina Rough Riders when they visit the city. This year after all five officials received a wire from Tim Haway, secretary of the Regina club, asking him to consider the possibility of the team coming to town for a three-game series, November 13, 14 and 15, mutual arrangements were made with Vancouver and Victoria teams to split the games among the three cities.

The favourable point out that the Victoria team is the strongest in the West, and the Rough Riders are not far behind. The Vancouver team is also the strongest, and the two teams are equal in strength.

Accordingly a wire has been dispatched to the Rough Riders asking if they would be willing to play the three games in Vancouver November 13, 14 and 15. Victoria's answer was favorable.

As this time for the opening game appears to be Tuesday evening, this date is fixed in the W. V. C. A. gymnasium on 132nd street, interest in the girls basketball league and the winter basketball season is great. The local teams seem to be making their appearance, and the girls have fully filled in visiting coaches and leaders; when the older girls are no less than twenty years old, the younger girls are still young, and many of them are eager to play and some organizing has been found necessary to take care of them.

On Tuesday evening the girls will play the Victoria team, and on Wednesday the other team, Grizzlies vs. Indians.

On Thursday evening the Indians will play the Victoria team, and on Friday the Grizzlies vs. Indians.

WHEAT CLOSES DOWN LITTLE

Rallies When Market at Winnipeg Opens, But Falls Slightly

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—After a slight rally to 1 cent during the first of the session, the local wheat market today closed down 1 cent, or 1/2 cent of each bushel, in the last hour and ended 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents below the day.

Interest in the speech of a man who was present at the meeting they referred it to the opening price of 1 cent. Other factors were the grain crop, foreign trade, and the fact that the soviet was not in the market for Canadian wheat, as the Russian crop is estimated at 100,000,000 tons greater than last year.

Offer—a wide fall and some of the senior grade advanced fractionally.

Corn, 1 cent higher, and oats fluctuated slightly. Lower wheat, oats, and rye, and barley and oats held firm.

A Tidal Wave of Wheat

By FREDERICK GRIFFIN

Some farmers still use platoons of horses instead of the modern mechanical farm. These five have just emptied two wagon loads of wheat at the Acheson, Sask., elevators.

THREE is nothing in eastern Canada, nor, indeed, probably anywhere in the world, to which this year's wheat harvest in the west will be compared.

The imagination stumbles at trying to visualize it in the mass.

Wheat is everywhere. It is like tomming, those golden columns of harvested golden-brown grains which are one of the greatest basic necessities of the world's food-supply—the sands of the seashore. The marsh, is it not said, is the grave of the world? This enormous crop over such a tremendous acreage.

The west is, at the time of writing, which is more than three weeks since this will be read, literally buried beneath the bonanza main-mass crops. It has raised a benevolent broken stain of wheat which has run amuck and swamped the land. It has covered the prairie with the remains of ancient battlefield in the space of a hundred years or so were mere trifling with work compared to this gigantic mass harvesting in a matter of months.

There never has been such a fall generally within the memory of man. Day after day—for twenty days, thirty days, maybe even a month—without rain, without rain, without a flake of snow. Clouds have crossed the face of the sun and gone. And the harvesting has proceeded without interruption.

Nature has held her hand. Nature has been very good. If nature had not suddenly sent a few days of rain in August to burst the field and lower the grade, the record millions of dollars then this might well have been the most magnificent year in western history.

For hundreds of thousands of acres of new wheat all over the western half of a million acres on the C.N.R. lands in Alberta and Saskatchewan alone have yielded their twenty, thirty, forty tons to the acre.

The crop ripened earlier than usual. Cutting and threshing were not required for a single hour. Add to these a vast acceleration of farm operations, a saving of time, a saving of power, the combination of the combine and the motor truck, a wonderful speeding up of the whole process of garnering and you have the reason for a situation such as that has never been known before.

In previous years the crop came in gradually, evenly, one district a little early, another a little late. It flowed on through the mobile elevators, to the grain cars, to the railroads, to the lakes, to the freighters, out to the sea. There has often been a little plugging of the system here and there, but it worked easily enough and was always a short affair. Interruptions in the system were few and far between.

Sometimes men did not get their threshing done promptly, but that was a rare occurrence. And so the system could usually keep pace.

But this year the system has fallen down before the giant crop and the unusual conditions, in a representative sense, for the first time, ever. Every farmer has had his difficulties in the drive to get the grain to the sea—and failed because it was humanly impossible with the facilities to ride this tidal wave of grain.

Piles of It Just Lying Around

The railroads borrowed thousands of cars from American railroads to haul wheat, but, by great good fortune, the combination of fall weather, consolidated farm effort and motor power proved too fast for them.

And the west laughs at its hands and laughs at the railroads. They have harvested, they are almost all in. Men said they were from six to seven weeks ahead of last year. They were.

Now, because the wheat which were plowed and sown the winter which had harvested could not move perhaps for weeks.

Where there is this harvested wheat,

Literally all over the land.

Hundreds of grain elevators in many districts, these strings of three, four, five and six elevators, which arise at every siding, are checkered with piles of wheat as they slug along, to be found on all sides.

Powerful green trucks, wheezing and plumping along the roads at forty miles an hour, threshing outfit, gasoline driven or steam driven, these wonderful implements which cut and thresh as they slug along, to be found on all sides.

Rode on the platform of one of these, with their heads, smiling, for a moment, at the grain elevators, the straw bunches where it had been threshed. It was shaped in (in) perfect circles, like the heads some of them merely a circle of chicken wire lined with straw.

In many cases it lay in carpeted golden-yellow banks by the side of the road. Vases representing hundreds, even thousands of dollars, much of it was piled in largeards.

In the yard of the Scottish Co-operative Farm at Elbow, I saw a small mountain of wheat that contained 40,000 bushels. Some $10,000 worth of wheat, half lying in the open on the ground and half stacked in a largeard.

Farmers had filled their root houses with it.

their houses, their granaries, even their homes. No later than yesterday (as I write) I
